

Summer Program International Encounters

– Social Justice

July 18th till July 29th 2016

Frankfurt University of Applied Sciences

What do we do?

The program's overall objective is to bring together students and lecturers in a joint and unique learning environment, enable international and multidisciplinary debates around a common subject, and pick up the latest topics in the area of international social, economic and environmental rights from a transnational perspective.

Who can attend?

The program is open to people who have fled from some danger, problem, or political persecution. We encourage a multidisciplinary environment which brings those people together with students from Frankfurt University of Applied Sciences. If somebody wants to study later on, each department of FRA-UAS guarantees them 5 credit points for participating in the summer program.

What are the costs?

The summer program is free of registration or tuition fees.
